"RED" WAR ON POLAND IS MENACE TO EUROPE

Bolshevists Might Join With German Armies, Says Lloyd George

MUST AID POLES

Premier Declares Soviet Answer To Peace Note Was "Ambiguous"

FATAL TO FUTURE

Thinks German Envoys At Spa Tried Hard But Need Help

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 21.—A serious situation has arisen between the Allies and Soviet Russia respecting Poland. The next few days are pregnant with the issues of peace or war.

The British Government has adopted the view that the Soviet reply means acceptance of the armistice, and they are now taking steps to test this view directly, without delay.

If the Sovietists try to defeat Poland before granting an armistice, the whole edifice of better relations between Europe and Russia, which Great Britain is attempting to build up, will collapse.

The Soviet reply offers Poland a better eastern frontier than that provided by the Versailles treaty.

NOTE DESPATCHED

London, July 21.—The British reply to the Soviet note was despatched to Moscow yesterday evening. It assumes that the Soviet is ready to make peace, but suggests that some of the Soviet's arguments cast doubt on this.

Meanwhile, in order to test the Soviet's sincerity, the Poles have been advised to apply for an armistice. If the Soviet declines and invades Poland the British trade negotiations will be stopped.

The Russian mission at present at Reval will not proceed to England until the question has been settled.

PREMIER'S SPEECH

London, July 21.—In the House of Commons this evening on a motion for adjournment, Mr. Lloyd George, delivered an important statement with regard to the Spa Conference.

He first of all paid a high tribute to the work of the Greek troops in clearing up the situation in Asia Minor, and expressed his confidence that they would be similarly successful in Thrace.

HOPE FOR TURKEY

The Prime Minister said that he was very hopeful that Turkey would sign the Treaty, because the Turks would recognise it as the best means of enabling Turkey to preserve the dominions left her by the Treaty and to start life on a surer and sounder basis than in the past.

The question of Poland, Mr. Lloyd George went on, had given the Allies very great anxiety. The Polish attack on Russia was "reckless and foolish" and the only excuse was Bolshevik interference in Polish affairs. Poland was legitimately afraid of Soviet Russia and anxious to have some form of a buffer State.

MUST HAVE FREE POLAND

An independent Poland, the Prime Minister proceeded, was essential to the whole fabric of peace. If the Bolshevists overran Poland they would march right up to the German frontier. That was a great temptation to Germany. It would be a cheap way of escaping from their obligations.

There were millions of trained men in Germany, he pointed out, and the effect of the Bolshevists overrunning Poland might be to deprive the Allies of the fruits of victory.

Therefore the Allies had concluded that they must take steps to arrest the destruction of Poland and the march of the Bolshevist armies through that country.

ALLIES IN ACCORD

The note sent from Spa to the Soviet Government, the Premier said, was sent with the full consent of the Allies. The Allies had made it clear to Poland that they would assist her to defend her own frontiers and own independence.

The Polish Premier undertook to withdraw the Polish army to the legitimate frontiers of Poland, defend those frontiers, and seek peace on that basis.

Mr. Lloyd George described the Soviet Government's reply as

Meeting To Arrange To Greet Visitors Will Be Held At Consulate At Noon Today—List Of Those Who Are Coming Is Announced

Following the announcement that was issued by Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham, American Consul-General, concerning the arrival here on August 5 of the big party of American legislators, preparations were set on foot yesterday by leading American organisations to extend greetings to the visitors and to arrange for their entertainment while here.

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former American Minister to China, who lately has been acting as a legal counsellor of the Chinese government at Washington, is accompanying the party and Mr. Julean Arnold, Commercial Attache of the American Legation at Peking, and Mr. Alexander Hume Ford, promotor of the Pan-Pacific Association also are members of it.

The first meeting of this body will be held at 12 o'clock noon today, at the American Consulate when an outline of the entertainment to be provided for the visitors will be discussed.

The party of Congressmen, U. S. Senators and others, with their wives and families, numbers upwards of 150 persons. They sailed from San Francisco in the first week in July on the U.S.S. ## TELLS FRANCE OF ASSETS IN "WHITE COAL"

M. Claveille Urges Nation To Develop Enormous Water Power

(Reuter's Wireless Service)

Paris, July 22.—M. Claveille, former Minister of Public Works, and now President of the Senate Committee for National Equipment, publishes an article in the Petit Parisien today, in which he emphasises the necessity for the exploitation by France of her riches in "white coal."

"France," he writes, "is the richest country in Europe in waterfalls. She has at her disposal hydraulic power amounting to 9,000,000 horse power, while that possessed by the other European countries, is as follows: Norway 7,500,000 H.P.; Sweden 6,750,000 H.P.; Italy 5,500,000 H.P.; Spain 5,000,000 H.P.; Switzerland 1,500,000 H.P.; and Germany 1,450,000 H.P.

"The national interest demands the undertaking of important development work on certain of our watercourses. The task is not beyond the power of a people, which has just astonished the world by the victory it has gained and which will not allow itself to be outrun in the matter of the utilisation of water-power by the other nations of Europe, some of whom at the present time are elaborating very extensive schemes on these lines."

On the homeward run Shamrock repassed Resolute and finished 18 seconds ahead. She was therefore beaten on time allowance by 7 minutes and one second.

A navy "blimp," the occupants of which were observing the race, fell into Jamaica Bay. The crew and newspaper men on board were easily rescued.

GENERAL WU PEI-FU

He is the crack henchman of General Tsao Kun, Military Governor of Chihli. It is largely due to the supremacy of General Wu's troops that the Chihli faction is so resolute in its campaign against the Anfu Club; which, for the past three years, has been plundering the nation of her resources through intrigues with Japan.

Wu is today hailed by the majority of the Chinese as the idol of the hour.

Tuchun's Order Indictment Of General Wang Yi-tang

Translation Of Official Order Issued By Li Shun At Nanking Is Made Public

A translation of the order issued at Nanking by Tuchun Li Shun of Kiangsu for the arrest of Gen. Wang Yi-tang, Chief Northern Peace Delegate, as reported in THE CHINA PRESS yesterday, has been issued by the Chinese Bureau of Information.

In the order serious charges of fomenting trouble and disorder at points in the province are set forth. The translation follows:

THE ORDER

"Wang Yi-tang, one of the important members of the Anfu Club, has been used by the Club to monopolise the office of the Speaker of the House. He has been staying in Shanghai for more than one year, trying to make peace with the South. Owing the failure of his effort to popular opposition, he feels very miserable. Since the Anfu Club has been the target of the whole nation during the last few weeks, his uneasiness and unpleasantness have been augmented by leaps and bounds.

"In view of the fact that the Chihli army has been making victorious marches in the North and that Tuchun Li Shun of Kiangsu has been maintaining a more or less neutral attitude towards the Anfu-Chihli wrangle, Wang hates the Kiangsu officials and he has tried every means to discredit them.

"It has been authentically reported that he has made close connections with the bandit groups, known as "Blue Bandits" and "Red Bandits." The chieftains of these bandits, Wong Toh-lin and Yen Shiaomaise (smallpox) are now among Wang Yi-tang's best friends. They have been sent to Yangchow, Chinkiang and nearby localities to start trouble. It is also reported that the bandit chieftains stayed in Ming Ho-li, Shanghai, and Wang Yi-tang has instructed Chi Kwan-en to organise an assassination battalion to throw bombs in the vicinity of the Tuchun's Yamen at Nanking.

OTHER CHARGES

"It is again reported that Wang has also sent ruffians to Chuyung, Tienwangcheng, and Yahwangtsang to connect with the bandit chief Ren, there to disturb peace and order. Ren has joined with the bandits of Y-shing, and Wusieh to take this opportunity to start trouble. It is again reported that Wang is organising three divisions of the army. This army will be used to fight against opposing forces in Kiangsu and Anhui. Chi Kwan-en has been appointed the Commander-in-Chief of Ting Kuo Chung in Anhui, and Yuan Chih-chin and others as subordinate commanders to raise troubles at Chingkiangpu, Yangchow, Tienchang, Luho, Ycheng, Shihchow, Chinglungshan, etc. Tufei will be drafted by Wang to antagonise the existing officials and to start open revolt in both Kiangsu and Chekiang Provinces.

"These reports all come from reliable sources. Wang Yi-tang's crime has thus reach its limit. The people of Kiangsu are innocent. They should not be mishandled by Wang in this manner. Therefore it is imperative that these facts must be made clear to the public.

EMISSARIES SENT

"It has been reported at the Tuchun's Yamen that Wang Yi-tang and Chu Kwan-en and others have sent more than one hundred emissaries to Huian, Yangchow, Chingkiang, Nanking and other districts of Kiangsu, with a sum of $15,000, for the purpose of buying over the bandits there to stir up disorder. For these secret conspiracies, warrants have been issued to arrest the conspirators.

"It is now again reported that Wang and Chi have again sent Yen Siaomotse, Wong Teh-lin, Pei Tse-shang, Wang Ting, Han Huei, etc. to go to different places in the Province to unite with the local Tufei there to start trouble. Warrants also have been issued to capture these outlawed conspirators.

"If any one can help to catch these conspirators, alive or dead, he will receive unusual rewards. The soldiers must understand that to destroy the ruffians and to make peace for the innocent is a supreme duty for the country. It is hoped that they will make extra efforts to have these conspirators arrested at an earliest time possible."

PEKING POLICE SELLING RICE TO BRING DOWN SOARING PRICE

Demands Of Tsao Kun Handed To Tuan By President Hsu Shih-chang

TSAO ARRESTS MEDIATOR

Brother Of Chihli Chief Detains Fu Liang-tso; Others Escape

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, July 23.—Little Hsu caused a sensation in this city last night by suddenly returning here from the front and showing himself as a refugee at the Hotel Wagon Lits.

Some hours after his appearance at the hotel he left the establishment in the company of two Japanese military officers. Subsequently, the Japanese Legation issued a denial of the report that the Anfu leader had taken refuge in the legation.

Five thousand of Little Hsu's troops, while on their way to Mongolia, were stopped near Hsuanhwachen by General Wang Ting-chen, Tartar-General of Jehol and former trusted lieutenant of General Feng Kuo-chang. A skirmish was fought.

The southern flank of the Anfu Army is collapsing and is retreating between Langfang and Pengtai. The forces of General Chang Tso-lin, the Fengtien Tuchun, are now guarding Langfang.

AFTER MA LIANG

Chang has also sent men down South to fight General Ma Liang, the Tsinanfu Military Commissioner, who has advanced beyond Tehchow after capturing the arsenal and defeating General Shan Teh-chuan.

Ma Liang is the only Anfu General who has been successful in his operation; but when pitted against the stone wall of the Mukden chief, his days are surely numbered.

Police stations at Peking are now selling grains at lower prices than the market rates, which have gone up skyward. Shipments of grain are coming into the capital. Two regular trains are leaving for Tientsin today.

It is reported that the whole of the third division has deserted the Anfu cause, and that Marshal Tuan is now content to place himself under the orders of President Hsu Shih-chang.

The collapse is so complete that even Anfu publications are being closed.

RECENT CHANGES

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 23 (4 p.m.).—Certain changes have occurred in the positions of the troops on the various fronts since yesterday.

General Wu Pei-fu, with twenty thousand men, is now at Liuliho. Two hundred of his cavalry are at Changsintien. Marshal Tuan Chi-jui's troops on the western front have dispersed.

On the middle front General Tsao Kun's troops have crossed the Yungting-ho, and Tuan's men are retreating on Nanyuan. The troops of the Frontier Defense Force evacuated Lanfang this morning. They looted the shops before leaving.

TARTARS IN KALGAN

It is reported that the Tartar General of the Chahars has occupied Kalgan, with a view to preventing the passage of troops of the Frontier Defense Force to Mongolia. One mixed brigade of the Frontier Defense Force has arrived at Suanhwafu and another is en route.

General Wu Pei-fu announces that he will not bring his troops to Peking. He is engaging transport coolies at Liuliho. He is ready, however, for any possible contingency.

Farmers in the battle areas are being compensated by General Wu Pei-fu at the rate of three dollars per mow for damaged crops. Local residents laud the behavior of General Wu Pei-fu's men.

General Wu Pei-fu states that, so far as he is concerned, the Peking-Hankow railway can resume services immediately.

NO SETTLEMENT

Later. (4:30 p.m.).—General Chin Yun-peng telegraphed yesterday from Tientsin that a settlement could not be reached there, pending the arrival of General Chang Tso-lin, who was due this morning.

It is not known whether General Chang Tso-lin will remain at Tientsin or come on to Peking to assist in drawing up the terms of surrender here.

There is no longer any question of bargaining on the part of the Anfuites. With the dispersal and disorganisation of their military force, the Anfu cause has collapsed. Its news-agencies and newspapers are being liquidated, and many of its leaders have sought refuge in the homes of foreign friends. The Anfu debacle is complete.

PEACE IN SOUTH?

The prospects of securing peace with the South, while the political situation in the North is clearing up are keenly discussed in Peking.

Both Chinese and foreign circles point out that General Lu Yung-ting sympathises with the Chihlities and General Tang Chi-yao has expressed himself in favor of General Wu Pei-fu; and that this throws Tang Shao-yi and Sun Yat-sen into the background and disposes of Wang Yi-tang's aspirations still to be considered the Northern official representative.

IMPORTANCE EMPHASISED

Official circles emphasise the extreme importance of taking the fullest advantage of the approaching opportunity to restore peace all over the country, and thus demonstrate to Europe and America that the recent strife has been more than a mere party struggle, and that the liberal leaders of China are really working for China's interests, which are inseparable from the interests of civilisation the world over.

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, July 23.—Beaten and despondent, Marshal Tuan Chi-chi, erstwhile Northern war lord, attempted to take his own life yesterday by shooting himself with a rifle. Timely arrival of his bodyguards at his residence prevented the suicide; but for a while the militant leader was resolved to have a taste of the weapon which he has applied to others during a great part of his life.

The rifle belonged to one of his guard. Time and again he made for the weapon, after it had been taken away from him. Members of his family were immediately summoned to his side. They are now watching his movements day and night. The Marshal says little; and appeared to show that the pill that he is now forced to swallow is too bitter for him.

President Hsu Shih-chang, has referred to him the list of Anfu criminals, sent by Tsao Kun, the Chihli leader. Tsao demands the death penalty for Little Hsu Tseng Yu-tsing (the Anfu Minister of Communications) and General Ting Shih-yuan, the Anfu director of the Peking-Suiyuan Railway and of the Aeronautics department of the Ministry of Communications.

BANISHMENT FOR SOME

Tsao further demands the banishment from office of Wang Tse-lung, Ni Shih-chung's trusted lieutenant; and the dismissal from office of Li Shih-hao, Minister of Finance; Chu Shen, Minister of Justice; and Liang Hung-chi, manager of the Anfu Club.

Tsao's demands, coupled with the failure of the mediators to accomplish anything in their negotiations with Tsao, are said to have caused the desperate move of Tuan.

The delegation of mediators have all returned to Peking except Fu Liang-tso, former Hunan Tuchun, who has been detained by Tsao Jui, brother of the Chihli Tuchun. Fu called on Tsao on Tuesday and asked the latter to be more lenient toward Tuan. Tsao immediately ordered his arrest.

OFFER IGNORED

The offer made by the delegation was ignored by the Chihli

Wife Says "Babe's" Two Lives Are Split Between Herself And Baseball

Mrs. George H. Ruth

A little blue-eyed woman who can stand nearly under "Babe" Ruth's outstretched arm and is known to him under the alias of "Hon," sits daily in the grandstand at the Polo Grounds, New York, to watch her big "Babe" slam out his homers. After the game Mrs. Ruth drags her big hubby home to his dinner of steak and fried potatoes, of which he is unusually fond. Mrs. Ruth is an ardent fan and, take her word for it, she is as tired as her "Babe" after the game, for she pulls hard for him to knock the ball out of the lot each time he comes to bat. "Baseball is life to him," said Mrs. Ruth; "that is, it's half his life. There are two sides to his head. One of them is for baseball and the other for me." They have been married for six years.

Quaints And Quality

Dear Mutt:—Folk in Shanghai want a lot of tickling these days to make them even smile, and so it must be something real good that will make them laugh, cheer, and clap their hands red.

That is what they did last night at the Lyceum Theater, when the Quaints gave a new program.

Mutt old dear, I wish you were here, the stuff the Quaints put over is reminiscent of the Orpheum, or the Keith Circuit.

The company has eight artists, and everyone of them is a star of the first class. They twinkle. They all shine, and they all shed brightness with every appearance.

R. B. Salisbury likes to laugh himself, and yet he keeps a face so straight that he somehow infects the house, until they cannot sit straight, but double up with laughter. He has another winner in his new program.

He tells you where flies go to in the winter time.

And say, Mutt, he gets the crowd to sing the tune, too. If you were here I believe you would warble as well. I did not sing last night because I was sitting beside Mrs. Jiggs, and when she started she absolutely shut up the rest of the house, and I hear that Salisbury is getting her to join up.

Jiggs says the Quaints can take his "quaint" to the quaintest parts that they care to take her.

There is one member of the company, Jeff old dear, whom I did not mention in my last letter and yet all through the show he made himself prominent by keeping quiet.

He is the fellow that plays the piano. His accompaniments are so good, that they seem to merge themselves into the voice of the singer. He is delightful to listen to, and he caresses the notes as a violinist cuddles his favorite fiddle. His name is Jack Stracey—and if he ever hits San Francisco give him a good time, Mutt.

Ernest Scovell likes Shanghai, and the place likes him every bit as much as he likes it. That voice of his is so sympathetic that he gets into your innards, and demands response.

Grahame Doncaster put over all his numbers in great style. He is a big boy, with a big voice and heart. He scored a home run with his new version of "The Admiral's Broom."

And Mutt, there were the ladies. Need I go further? Old Jiggs tried to leap across the footlights, but Maggie stopped him. He just loved them all, but he was only one of the big crowd.

We all like them, and the more we see and hear them the more popular they become. Miss Dorothy James has new numbers, and very well she presents them. Miss Hilda Denton still sings songs superbly.

Miss Josephine Cantor gave a Russian dance in costume, and the applause she got was loud enough to be heard on the other side of the Golden Gate. Miss Ella Cameron whistles, and we all respond.

Last night she had to give an encore to satisfy the cries that came from the dark side of the footlights.

Mutt, old dear, the Quaints are putting up the show again tonight. They entertained the British King and Queen with their present program, and what is good enough for them, old thing, is good enough for us.

And it is good. I'm going again tonight. Jeff wants to come, but he sings too loud in the chorus of "Where do Flies go to in the Winter Time."

If he wants to sing the haunting melody then let him sing it in his bath.

Yours,
DOMINO.

men, who demand the carrying out of the offered terms before an armistice can be proclaimed. The terms are the punishment of Little Hsu and the dissolution of his troops, the Anfu Club and the Anfu Parliament.

Despite the protest of the British Legation against the use of British-made aeroplanes in the present strife, this kind of machine, handled by the Frontier Defense Force, bombed Peitsan, now occupied by Fengtien and Chihli troops. Seven bombs were thrown but none of them did much damage.

MA LIANG A VICTOR?

From foreign sources, it is learned that Ma Liang, the commander of Frontier Defense Army at Shantung, has recaptured Tehchow and its arsenal after routing the division commander there, General Shan Teh-chuan. General Tsao Yin is now reinforcing Shan.

At all other places the Chihli forces continue to gain. The Fengtien forces are still being poured into Tientsin, causing suspension of the railway line through congestion.

MAX ENGEL WINS LIBEL CASE IN FRENCH COURT

L. Soyka Ordered To Pay Tls. 550 As Damages And Court Costs

Judgment was delivered this morning in the French Mixed Court by M. Raynaud and Magistrate Chen in the libel case of M. Max Engel, the former Czecho-Slovak delegate, against L. Soyka.

The judgment distinguished the libel against M. Engel as a private person from an officer and awarded him Tls. 500 as damages and Tls. 50 court fees. Karel Jan Hora, the defendant's main witness, was fined Tls. 25 for having given false testimony.

The court establishes plaintiff's right to ask for amendment of damages as soon as the investigation, which is being carried out by the Czecho-Slovak authorities into the charges brought against M. Engel in his former official capacity, is concluded.

A few days ago, in the same court, M. Engel was awarded Tls. 2,000 as his fees as Administrator of the estate of Otto Soyka, the defendent's brother, who committed suicide in June, 1917.

The award was opposed by M. L. Soyka, in his capacity of heir to the estate. In both cases M. Engel was represented by M. Auxion de Ruffe, whilst the defendant had M. Premet as his lawyer.

He stated that this year he was waiting for a formal notification from the department.

H. F. Munns was fined $3 yesterday in the British Police Court for keeping a dog without a license. Defendant admitted the charge. Inspector Vaughan prosecuted.

"Red" War On Poland Is Menace To Europe

ambiguous and largely propaganda. So far as he could understand, the Soviet said they were willing to negotiate with Poland directly. They alleged that the Allies had treated Poland badly in fixing the boundary.

They wanted to give more to Poland and promised to consider an armistice in a friendly spirit; but apparently they were only prepared to discuss the matter with a proletariat government.

SOVIET EVASIVE

The Soviet, Mr. Lloyd George declared, were not entitled to dictate to Poland what sort of Government she should have. In order to test the Soviet's bona fides, the Allies had advised Poland to apply to the Soviet for an armistice with a view to peace.

"In our reply to Moscow," added the Prime Minister, "we were bound to make it clear that if, in spite of the Polish application for an armistice, the Russian armies still marched on, we would give Poland such assistance as we could.

"We are bound to do everything in our power to avert the wiping out of Poland, which would be fatal to the peace of Europe."

"RED" ENVOYS HALT

Mr. Lloyd George confirmed the report that the Russian trade delegates en route for England were remaining at Reval pending the Soviet's further reply. Time, however, was pressing, proceeded the Prime Minister, and France and Great Britain had sent envoys to Poland to investigate the question of assisting the people to defend their frontiers. France was sending General Weygand, and Marshal Foch would follow if necessary.

Refering to Germany, the Prime Minister said he thought Herr Fehrenbach, the Chancellor, and Dr. von Simons, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, honorable and upright men who were doing their best to cope with gigantic difficulties. They had clearly made up their mind to do their utmost to carry out the Treaty, but the Allies were not confident that they could do it.

CONFIRMS REPORTS

Regarding reparation, Mr. Lloyd George emphasised that complete understanding had been reached among the Allies and confirmed the particulars already published.

Dealing with the question of coal, Mr. Lloyd George stated that of the difference between the export and inland price of German coal—five marks per ton—would be paid in cash to Germany and the balance would be advanced to Germany for the purchase of food and clothing.

He added that there was no doubt that the population was gravely underfed. The figures of infantile mortality were appalling, while investigation bore out the assertion that the miners were unable to turn out their quota of coal because they were underfed.

Therefore, the arrangement had been made that more than half the commercial value of the coal would be advanced to provide the necessary food and clothing.

GERMAN SCHEME

Again discussing reparations, Mr. Lloyd George said the Germans had submitted a general scheme for liquidating reparations. That document was most able and most valuable, as giving a clear proof that the Germans were making a real effort to grapple with the problem of indemnity. There was no attempt at evasion.

It had been decided to appoint a committee of experts to discuss the document with the Germans.

Arrangements had also been made at Spa, Mr. Lloyd George continued, enabling the question of war criminals to be dealt with effectively at an early date. The premier remarked that, incidentally, it was not in the least clear that the delay in the arrests of criminals rested with the Germans.

AS TO DISARMAMENT

Regarding disarmament, the Prime Minister expressed the opinion that the naval portion would be completed by the end of September. Considerable progress had also been made with the military program, but there were still three million rifles in Germany unsurrendered; while, although 25,000 guns had been surrendered, only about half had been destroyed. The Allies were now destroying them at a rate of about a thousand a week.

Mr. Lloyd George estimated that there were still 900,000 armed men in Germany; and, also, too much war material spread about the country. He thought that the rifles had not been surrendered because the extreme Right and the extreme Left did not trust each other; not because they distrusted the Allies.

The Allies were demanding that Germany should insist on both sections giving up their arms. The position was dangerous. The Allies had therefore insisted on the issue of a proclamation, demanding the surrender of rifles by September.

GLOWING PICTURE

In conclusion, Mr. Lloyd George eloquently compared the present position with that of two years ago; when, almost to the very day, the Kaiser started from Spa after sending the message that the next stop would be Versailles.

Mr. Asquith, who followed the Prime Minister, while regretting that the Powers had not succeeded in preventing Poland from embarking on a foolish adventure, agreed that Poland must not be overrun by the Bolsheviks. The Allies, he said, should take steps on the initiative of the League of Nations.

Mr. Lloyd George, intervening, said that one of the most vehement portions of the Bolshevik reply was their refusal to have anything to do with the League.

ASQUITH PLEASED

Mr. Asquith, continuing, expressed satisfaction that the Spa Conference had seen the desirability of revising the treaty with regard to coal and disarmament. He hoped that this consideration would be further extended as experience was gained regarding the working of the Treaty.

Mr. Lloyd George, replying to a question by Mr. Asquith, said he thought that the German representatives at the forthcoming conference at Geneva would come prepared with provisional figures regarding the amount payable to the Allies. But the final figures could only be settled when a decision had been reached regarding Silesia.

WIPE OUT DEBTS

Sir Samuel Hoare expressed the opinion that, eventually, the Inter-Allied war debts would have to be wiped off. He suggested that, meanwhile, in order to dissipate French suspicions that British policy was dictated by meterial considerations, Britain should wipe out France's liability to pay interest on the £515,000,000 owing to us.

Mr. Lloyd George, winding up the debate, disclaimed British responsibility for General Wrangel's operations, and said the Bolshevik reply offered an amnesty for General Wrangel. Britain, he said, was anxious for peace on the basis of the independence of Poland.

He referred to the false impressions in Russia with regard to the British, which made the negotiation of a much-desired peace almost impossible. He believed, he said, that the Bolsheviks would be greatly mistaken if they invaded Poland, where the forces were more formidable than they imagined.

WATER-WORKS FOR NANCHANG

Wei Chih-yu Starts For Shanghai To Purchase Machinery

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanchang, July 20.—With schools out and students scattered, the promoters of a water-works plant for Nanchang are beginning to feel their way again and their chief, Wei Chih-yu, is now in Shanghai visiting foreign bankers and making arrangements for the purchase of machinery.

He left for Shanghai following an interview with the Industrial Commissioner, who had been asked by the Civil Governor to make an investigation of the men concerned in the scheme.

ALL KIANGSI MEN

The Commissioner reported that since they were all Kiangsi men, and that since he, too, was a Kiangsi man, any criticism he might make would be ill-becoming to a man of his rank and position.

The interview with Wei followed this report and Wei assured him that the company was in no hurry to proceed. They had already been waiting two years and would gladly wait a little longer. And thereby hangs a tale.

Last April Wei applied to the Provincial Assembly for permission to float a foreign loan and everything was going nicely, until word of the goings-on came to the ears of the Students' Union.

LAID FOR THEM

Shortly thereafter an assemblyman was waylaid at night and badly beaten. Street demonstrations were held, the military picketed the schools and shut the students inside, and, the Assembly washed its hands of the whole affair.

It is thought, however, that more of the same generosity properly and quietly applied will bring the desired consent and Mr. Wei is so sure of it that he is talking seriously with the agents in Shanghai about the prices of pumps and filters.

London, July 21.—The delegates to the British Empire Forestry Commission attended Buckingham Palace today.

Mr. Mackay, representing Victoria, presented an address to His Majesty, who in the course of his reply, extended a special welcome to the delegates from overseas.

His Majesty congratulated the Home Forest authority on joining hands with the foresters of the Empire soon after the war and expressed his satisfaction that India and the other Dominions, where forest science was already part of national life, were placing their experience at the disposal of those parts of the Empire, to which the importance of the subject had been brought home for the first time by the experience of the war.

ROBBERS SWARM ON GRAND CANAL

Overrun North Country; Holding Standard Oil Man For Ransom

(China Press Correspondence)

Tsingkiangpu, Ku., July 21.—Robbers are overrunning the entire North country. Ninety li from here they are plying their trade at will. They control the Grand Canal, between Chongshin and Suchien; they hold up boats, rob the passengers and carry off for ransom those worth while.

Last Friday they captured Mr. Ho, local agent of the Standard Oil Co., and are holding him for ransom. It is said a letter has been received here from him asking for $300 to be given the bearer as "wine money for the brethren who were detaining him."

MADE TO SUFFER

The amount of ransom was not stated as the chief had not considered his case. He said he was suffering severely at the hands of his captors and asked for quick relief.

Word has just come that the the tufei have recently captured Roman Catholic priest living at Sui Ling in this province. The robbers demanded ransom which the priest refused to pay. He was then tortured until he offered the robbers $30,000; but $300,000 was demanded. He is still in their hands.

The figures may have been enlarged as the word passed along but the brigands are demanding and getting large amounts. Travel and traffic on both the Grand and Salt Canals is dangerous and much restricted.

CANAL WATER RISES

After six months with no steam tug traffic, owing to low water, the Grand Canal has risen six or seven feet and tugs now arrive daily.

It is to be hoped the Canal Conservancy schemes will not only take in the northern half but the southern half of the Canal as well. From Chining, Shantung, down, dredging, repairing of the banks storing up excess water of the summer freshets in the lakes in Shantung and Kiangsu, are needed improvements. The control of the whole canal system and supply should be in the hands of one man and he be held responsible. Now, when there is no water in which to plant rice, the local gentry send $200 to some power near the Shantung lakes and buy water, which comes down the canal after the money has been received.

It seems a pity that such a splendid water course, of such public value, should be allowed to deteriorate and be useless for months at a time.

LOCAL BODIES TO ENTERTAIN GLEE CLUB TONIGHT

Members of the University of California Glee Club will be guests at a reception to be given tonight at 7:30 o'clock by the Western Returned Students' Union, the Y.M.C.A. and the World Chinese Students' Federation. The reception will be held at the lobby of the Boys' Building, Y.M.C.A.

Mr. M. Y. Chung, president of the Western Returned Students' Union, will act as chairman and Dr. Fong F. Sec, president of the national committee, Y.M.C.A. and a California man, will deliver the principal speech of welcome.

Following the reception, the Glee Club will give a concert in the Y.M.C.A. Auditorium. The program will be composed of a selection of the best numbers taken from their previous performances. Admission to the reception will be by special invitation. Tickets for the concert, however, may be obtained at the office of the Student Federation or the Y.M.C.A., and are $1 for reserved seats and fifty cents for general admission.

There has been some confusion owing to the fact that another concert has been advertised to be given by the Glee Club at the Olympic Theater that same evening. Both entertainments will be held as advertised.

GLIDDEN FINDS SIAM ALL AGOG OVER AVIATION

Backed On Large Scale, He Says, On Return From World Air Mission

New York, June 14.—Siam is leading most of the countries of the world in aeronautical development, and aviation is dominating the interest of the people, while governmental and private agencies are backing aeronautical enterprises on a large scale, according to Charles J. Glidden, who returned yesterday on the Imperator of the Cunard line. Mr. Glidden, who is back from a trip around the world in connection with the globe encircling aerial derby which the Aero Club of America is organising, said that since leaving New York last October he had traveled nearly forty thousand miles. Commodore Louis D. Beaumont and Sidney Hillman, co-members of the aerial commission, remained on the other side to continue the work of organising the race.

"In all the countries we visited we were most cordially received by the heads of the Government," said Mr. Glidden. "We found a world-wide interest in the race. Commissioners were appointed to assist in the race, and when the list is finally completed sixty countries and colonies will be represented. Handley-Page has arranged to provide for the transportation of three passengers around the world in the race as a test flight."

The Imperator, the former Hamburg-American liner allocated to the British, had been out of commission for several weeks as a result of a serious list which developed on the last trip to the other side. The smoke stacks have been shortened and other changes made, entirely correcting the trouble. Passengers yesterday were loud in their praise of the steamer's performance.

Herman Bernstein came back on the Imperator from a tour through Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia, France, England and Italy. It was his intention to visit Russia, but the Soviet Government barred him.

"The present curse of Europe is that the people have either forgotten how to work or have lost their desire for work," said Mr. Bernstein. "The uncertainty of conditions today is preventing the working people from thinking of tomorrow.

FINDS HUNGARY WARLIKE

"Austria has indeed become a pauper State, whose condition is tragic. Hungary is warlike, in the throes of white or black terror, and before long there will undoubtedly be another outbreak in that part of the world. Czecho-Slovakia is meanwhile the most contented of the States that grew out of the war.

"Germany is perhaps the only country where, despite the disturbed political conditions, the people have returned to work, realising that only in work lies their salvation.

"Peace must be made with Russia. The doors of Russia must be opened and free intercourse established between Russia and the outer world. Then the world will find out whether the Soviet regime is as good or as bad as it is painted. It seems that they have abandoned some of their extreme Bolshevism, and are ready for peace with the world. The world needs Russia as much as Russia needs the world."

Central Europe is showing a preference for American made goods and the opportunities offered to American business in those countries should not be overlooked, said H. Land, a New York business man, who spent four months there. An American passport was an open sesame, he declared, and nowhere was there any hostility shown. Conditions in Vienna were very bad at present, Mr. Land found; the shops were half empty and the merchants showed little desire to sell their stocks, hoping that the deflated currency would get back to normal again.

"Burcharest and Vienna are singing American jazz songs," he said. "The populace learn all the tunes familiar here and won't tolerate music."

A. Rathbone, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, was among the arrivals. He said he had been in France on Governmental business, chiefly in connection with reparations.

Error Making Contest Won By Shanghai Club

Glee Club Ball Players Again Are Defeated In Second Game—Sailors Play Today

It was a burlesque ball game at the Race Course yesterday and it ended in favor of Shanghai 11 to 7. There was something doing every minute of the game. Error crowded on error in every inning.

Probably the substitute Shanghai infield created a record for the number of errors made in one inning with a total of seven. Gill who started and finished the show for the home gang was way off. He had but little control and while the Glee club swatters could not connect with his offerings his wildness led him into a lot of holes and he had to work his way out again. His support was of every little use to him as a study of the score will show.

Thirteen errors were charged up to the players of the green and white outfit. The Glee Club, popularly supposed to be the weaker team, showed up a little better in comparison. They only perpetrated eight miscues.

The big crowd present was with the Glee Club men who have won the hearts of all Shanghai by their work on the stage and possibly the home team, scenting this feeling tried to show their appreciation by kicking the ball around.

SHIFT AFTER FIFTH

A shift was made in the home-side line up after the fifth and the regular infield, becoming infected by the work of their predecessors, proceeded to show how they too could kick the sphere around. Everybody steadied down after this inning and began to look like a ball club from then on.

Gill appeared to get going and the Collegians could do little with his slow curves. There were but few fielding features. Held pulled off a circus catch in the fourth when he ran after a fly in right center, catching it, and then as the ball bounced out of his hands he made a grab at it before it could reach the ground and held it safely for the third out. There was a man on third at the time and his catch saved a run.

TWO HIT BALL

Glauque and Gill wielded heavy bats yesterday. Glauque cracked out two triples and Gill annexed two doubles. The third game of the series will be played Sunday. Claire will pitch for Shanghai and McCoy for the Blue and Gold. There will undoubtedly be a different kind of game played then as both teams will have pulled themselves together by then. Today the Regulars play the U. S. S. Lee

The Gobs boast of a fast team and it is expected that a fast game will result. Either Porterfield or Merrill will pitch for Shanghai. The game will be called at three thirty.

MANY SOUGHT TO KILL ESSAD PASHA

But Paris Observers Believe His Assassin Had No Part In Plots

ESSAD'S LUXURIOUS LIFE

Reputed To Have 'Made As Many Millions As He Made Enemies'

BY WALTER DURANTY

Paris, June 15.—An Arabian Nights story in the midst of Paris—that is the "inside" opinion of the assassination of Essad Pasha. To the average public it is the usual political murder, with the suggestion more or less strongly advanced by different newspapers that Italian ambitions in Albania are not unconnected with the killing of Albania's leading "patriot." To the Socialist minority it is the elimination, according to the best methods as prescribed by Lenin, of a prominent member of the Nationalist-capitalist group, which is responsible for the innumerable woes of the modern world. But, to those inside it is a story of Eastern romance aflame with blood and passion, darkened by bitter feuds and treacherous intrigue.

In the old days before the war Essad Pasha was chief of the mercenary guard of the Sultan Abdul Hamid. What these wild tribesmen, whose only gods were Allah and—of whom Abdul was the accredited representative here on earth—and gold, did to maintain the tottering regime of the Sick Man of Europe, forms one of the secret pages of history. During that period Essad's brother died by violence, but the Albanian chieftain still held fast his allegiance to Abdul. When the Young Turks deposed the old Sultan Essad followed their rising star with such success that a few years later found him the gallant defender of Scutari, then the capital of Albania, in one of the hardest sieges of history, against the combined forces of Serbs and Montenegrins.

Later, when the German Prince, William of Wied, gained a short-lived notoriety as King of Albania, it was Essad who met him at his landing and placed Albania's loyalty at his disposal. During Wied's brief reign he intrigued against him, and when the German princeling fled Essad for a short period saw his ambitions realised. During those thrilling months he played a double game with Serbs and Italians.

ESSAD SAVED SERBS

Then came the Austrian invasion and Servia's collapse. That time at least Essad was loyal. It was thanks to him that the exhausted remnant of the Servian Army and nation was able to escape through the rocky defiles of the Albanian mountains and reach security and food under the guns of the allied warships.

The next two years found Essad at Saloniki working so strenuously for the Allies that he won the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor and many other decorations. When Austria broke he returned to Albania, but the Italian occupants of the country looked with no favor on one who stood for Albanian nationalism, and he withdrew to Paris. Here he lived in luxury, surrounded by a numerous suite. "Essad had made as many millions as he had made enemies," said a French diplomat to me today, "and that's saying a good deal."

To be sure, he was not inactive. A fortnight ago all Albania rose against the Italian occupation and within five days the Italian flag flew only over the tiny area of Avlona covered by the Italian cruisers' guns. Another week and Essad might have returned home, patriot and dictator, with the goal of his ambition reached at last. Instead, he lies all hidden save his bold forehead, predatory nose and fierce Condottiere mustache, by heaps of flowers in the most luxurious apartment house in Paris, the Villa Said, in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne.

MANY PLOTTED HIS DEATH

There are facts of the story which all may know who care to look up the files of newspapers. But what is the secret that makes the members of the inner circles of Paris shrug their shoulders and nod their heads? It is this: At a conservative estimate there were ten different persons or parties actively and expensively engaged in plotting Essad's assassination, and, although they do not know it and all suspect the others, the crime was actually committed by one of them. To take a single instance: A very few years ago one Rigodat Pasha, like Essad, the chief of an important Albanian tribe and his principal rival, was sailing along the Albanian coast on an Italian vessel. The Italians, who knew him to be friendly, asked whether he would care to land at Durazzo, where Essad's influence was then considerable. He replied:

"Not long ago Essad sent me a most amicable letter closing a packet of white powder, which he suggested I should put in the soup of certain of our mutual enemies. I would like greatly to land in my native country, but before setting foot to earth I must be sure—which I am not now—that Brother Essad hasn't some of that same powder left."

Rigodat died suddenly not long ago with a knife between his ribs and doubtless left a considerable number of relations to carry on one of those Albanian family feuds beside which Corsican vendettas or the vengeance of the Kentucky mountaineers would hide themselves for shame.

In addition to such purely personal matters—and this was but one of many—Essad had incurred the vigorous and pernicious dislike of the Greek, Turkish, Servian and Italian Governments. The wonder was not that he was killed, but that he escaped being killed so long.

So there comes the drama of the story as Parisian insiders see it. Essad was surrounded by plot and counterplot aimed at his life. Every member of his suite, including a beautiful young girl, Lucie Delle, a flower that Essad had gathered from the Parisian boulevards, must have been approached dozens of times by his enemies. Perhaps—who knows?—some of them had yielded to temptation and were already waiting the moment to slip the aforesaid white powder in his soup. Then, suddenly, unexpectedly, he is shot dead by a poor young student. Newly arrived in Paris, he finds Essad living in the utmost luxury, honored, despite his crimes, rich, fat and successful.

"He walked so proudly," the assassin stammered during his examination at the police station. "I thought of what harm he had done my country, and I could bear it no more."

The speaker was bruised and battered by the blows of the crowd. He talked and acted, those say who saw him then, as though dazed, but his words ring true. In an earlier epoch his act would have been called the justice of Heaven; nowadays in Paris it is a good story to amuse cynical diplomats.

The most pathetic figure of all is the little French girl, Lucie Delle. With swollen eyes and tear-stained cheeks she wanders forlorn from room to room of the Villa Said apartment. She has no right there in Death's presence, and she knows it, but she does not dare to go away. Tonight Essad's wife will be here, but Lucie must wait to face her; for if she goes some one may say, or she thinks some one may say, that she had a hand in the crime. This may sound far-fetched, but in the atmosphere of mystery and terror around the Pasha's body the fruit of envy and suspicion ripens only too quickly.

And yet the truth is simple enough. I talked today with the French Magistrate appointed to investigate the crime. Like a father confessor, he is bound by his oath of secrecy, but one question he asked me gave a clue to his thoughts.

"Do you realise," he said, "that throughout history the murders of notable men almost always have acted independently? Take any assassination of a President, a crowned head or other important man. You will find that, however directly suspicion pointed to certain persons or parties, the guilt was never definitely fixed upon them. The assassin seemed to act alone and spontaneously, as if impelled by a force outside himself."

The Magistrate was careful to add that his words bore no special reference to Essad's case; that he had no particular reason for supposing that no instigators or accomplices would be discovered. But what he implied is what the knowing ones in Paris are saying: Essad Pasha, perhaps of all men then living the most threatened by assassination, fell by the hand not of his enemies, but of a lone impulse youth.

Captain To Quit After 455 Trips Across Sea

Captain Anton G. Thomasen, at present commander of the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VII., will soon quit the sea after making 455 trips across the Atlantic. He figures that he has guided vessels about 1,784,000 miles since he became captain in 1881. During all his time as shipper he never lost a ship. Captain Thomasen went to sea when he was thirteen years old. He has seen active service in every one of the Seven Seas. The veteran skipper thinks he has earned the right to rest, play golf and fish, and proposes to do with his wife and two daughters. this very same thing, spending the rest of his days in Denmark with his wife and two daughters.

KOREAN ALLEGES CLAIM AGAINST YUAN'S ESTATE

A local Japanese newspapers report that Duke Yin Shih-yung of the Korean old regime, who is the step-father of Empress Ni of Korea, has gone to Peking from Fengtien to make a claim against the estate of the late Emperor-Dictator, Yuan Shih-kai, for over $1,000,000.

The claim is based, it is understood, on money lent by Yin when Yuan was Resident Governor of Korea, when the latter country was a dependency of China. The principal loaned was $300,000 for military expenses of China, and for which a promisory note was executed by the late dictator.

Yin is now poor and desires to recover the money, which, together with interest, has accumulated to over a million dollars.

FLOODED RIVERS NOW SUBSIDING

Worst Overflows In Years, Swamping Many Cities, At Last Recede

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanchang, July 20.—Hsinchien Hsien, which takes in territory for miles along the east bank of the Kan River north from Nanchang to Poyang Lake is still flooded, though the Kan waters have been subsiding steadily for the past week and Nanchang streets are now entirely dry.

The floods of this season are the worst recorded in twenty years, according to the local press, and the condition of the people in this district is pitiful.

Families have been living on tables and benches until finally driven to beats or to such portion of the dykes as have not washed away.

LIVE STOCK LOST

All crops and practically all of the live stock in the district have been lost, but the loss in human life is said to be very small, probably less than one hundred.

Last week Tuchun Chen issued an order calling for every merchant holding stocks of rice to contribute thirty percent of all they had to him, so that he could pass it on to the flood sufferers. The Chamber of Commerce objected strenuously to such a high percentage and the demand was later reduced to twenty percent.

This offer was countered by a demand from the merchants that the apportioning be left to them and that, if the military would keep their hands off, they would deliver rice according to a schedule beginning with a gift of one thousand piculs from each of the three largest companies and ranging down to smaller amounts from smaller holders, the rice to be issued direct to sufferers upon presentation to the merchants of certificates issued from the Tuchun's yamen.

SMUGGLING ALLOWED

It is thought that the Governor will accept this proposed compromise; and that, probably, merchants making contributions to this fund will be allowed to smuggle rice to the markets where higher prices prevail.

Rice is now bringing about six dollars a picul in Nanchang.

Princess Nurse Weds Yankee Soldier

Quietly slipping away from the Naval Hospital, New York, where she had been a nurse since April 8, Princess Nadeja Troubetzkoy, known as the "most beautiful Red Cross nurse in Europe," was married recently to Captain Wallace Strait Schutz, of Milwaukee. Up to the moment that he led her to the altar the former army captain, it is said, held apprehensions of intervention on the part of intimate friends of the bride, who, it is said, strongly opposed her wedding outside the nobility. The bride was dressed in the Russian Red Cross uniform, which created a stir when she recently visited American Red Cross headquarters informally. The photograph shows the happy couple after the ceremony.

Commence Inquiry On Anfu Company

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanchang, Kiangsi, July 18.—This city is talking almost exclusively today about the resolution put through the Provincial Assembly demanding that the Industrial Commissioner make a thorough investigation of the aims, motives and backing of the Hua Mei Development Co., a subsidiary of the Anfu-controlled Hua Mei Bank.

The Hua Mei Co., has been recently organised to "develop the mineral resources of Kiangsi Province"; but the Assembly, which is decidedly anti-Anfu, seems convinced that the main idea of the new organisation is to create enough promising futures to lure more money from Japan, the money to be applied, not to development, but to help relieve the present predicament of the Anfu Club.

Feisul Accepts French Decree

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 21.—It is stated from a French source that King Feisul of Syria has accepted the French ultimatum.

London, July 21.—The Cairo correspondent of the Times states that the Syrian Government is appealing to the League of Nations to decide the questions, including that of the Beyrout-Aleppo railway line, which led to the French ultimatum.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and effic ent laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequen ly prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Eat What You Like

It is not what you eat that sometimes causes distress; it is what you do not digest.

The undigested portion of the food you eat must be eliminated. If it remains in the intestines, it ferments and poisons the system.

Proper elimination in most cases means good digestion and good health. Dr. Ross' Life Pills keep the digestive tract clean and free from poisonous matter which causes distress, ill health, and sometimes serious trouble.

Cotton Market

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co. write as follows in their report for week ending July 24:

China Cotton.—The market since the issue of our last circular continued comparatively lifeless and remains at the close unchanged. The mills appear to be well supplied for the time being with practically very little or no inquiries emanating from them either for spots or futures and while such circumstances, as in similar instances in the past, would have brought about a depreciating tendency, nevertheless during the period under review prices have ruled without any marked fluctuations coupled with a steady undertone.

The holders of stocks are apparently well fortified financially and evince no keenness in making offerings being convinced that sooner or later a general demand for the staple will arise when they will part with same at prices more in keeping with their expectations. However, at the present moment, it is difficult to foresee to what extent such will be realised, having in view the still happy outlook of the new season crop and the rise in silver; factors which should be carefully watched from day to day and which will determine the trend of the market in the near future. Tone of the market steady.

The League Of Nations And The American Election

THE news that Governor Cox of Ohio, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, and President Wilson are in hearty agreement, will be received with gratefulness and relief by believers in and supporters of the League of Nations the world over. That they are also in accord regarding the other planks in the Democratic platform brightens the prospects of the Democratic Party for success at the polls on November 2, next. "Gov. Cox," the President said after his interview with the Ohio executive, "will have the support of an absolutely united party in his championship of America's honor, to secure the peace of the world."

Gov. Cox is a mild reservationist and it is well known that the President gave his assent to a plank along that line before it was incorporated in the platform adopted at San Francisco. The platform as a matter of fact although it was drafted at a time when Cox's chance of the nomination were regarded as slim, fits Cox with a nicety that he himself could not have bettered had he been called upon to do the drafting.

On the other hand, the Republican nominee and the Republican platform do not travel together so smoothly in double harness and the comments of the press at home make this fairly clear. The independent newspapers are hammering one or the other, as even some of the staunch Republican newspapers are doing, while the Democratic press is a unit in lambasting both the candidate and his platform. Here's what the rock-ribbed Republican New York Tribune has to say:

"Republics are still ungrateful. Leonard Wood, who is one of the great men of America and destined to live in history, has been defeated for a Presidential nomination by a group of politicians just as Theodore Roosevelt was four years ago, and more recently Clemenceau was denied the Presidentcy of France. We had hoped that a man of undoubted courage, vision and executive ability would be chosen, but we have instead Warren Gamaliel Harding, one of the Senate group which controlled the convention. It would be hypocritical for The Tribune to pretend that it is satisfied with this result.

"On the other hand, we believe in the Republican Party, we believe in Republican principles. We believe in this year's Republican platform, which is a well thought-out, progressive and constructive document. We are more than pleased with the nomination of Calvin Coolidge, who has an inspiring record and who shows real promise of still greater accomplishments.

"Under our present political methods it is impossible to indorse the platform and Vice President nominee without also voting for the head of the ticket." And so on. Evidently a bitter pill but the Tribune is bravely trying to swallow it.

The New York Evening Post which is independent with Democratic leanings flatly denounces the nomination of Harding as "an affront to the intelligence of the country." It declares that the Republicans chose the worst of their candidates and then adds: "The nomination is all the worse because it perfectly fits the platform. .... It is too early to say that the Democrats deserve to win in November, but we have no hesitation in saying that the Republicans richly deserve to lose." This, before the Democrats had held their convention.

The New York World and The New York Times, both independently Democratic, hammer both the platform and candidate mercilessly while the Indianapolis News, Democratic, decribes the League of Nations utterance as an "Alice-In-Wonderland" plank, quoting

They told me you had been to her,
And mentioned me to him;
She gave me a good character,
But said I could not swim.

My notion was that you have been
(Before she had this fit)
An obstacle that came between
Him and ourselves and it.

Don't let him know she liked them best.
For this must ever be
A secret kept from all the rest,
Between yourself and me.

That the Republicans have lost a good deal of ground seems certain. To add to their confusion we now have in today's news President Wilson calmly summoning the League of Nations to meet on November 15, less than two weeks after the national election, and just as if the Republican Party didn't exist. The Republicans find themselves in the uncomfortable position of fighting a League of Nations which an American President more than any one other individual in the world helped to create and which the American army fought for and helped to make possible, and which, notwithstanding the fight that has been made on it, now comprises 28 sovereign nations.

IS IT PSEUDO-SCIENCE?

Critical View Of A Generalisation Made By Cincinnati Professor

Human intellect is so partial to a generalisation that even men of science constantly are guilty of generalising upon an insufficient basis of facts. A learned professor of the University of Cincinnati invites us to believe that the older the parents the better the chances of distinction for the children.

He draws his conclusion from what he says are the facts concerning cattle and horses. But only the other day we read a dissertation by another scientist warning against taking for criterion the history of the domestic animals, asserting that the human race, as far as heredity is concerned, is as much a wild species as lions, elephants, or wolves.

The Cincinnati savant also derives his induction from the facts concerning the parentage of illustrious men, Franklin, Lincoln, Newton, for instance, the sum of whose parents' ages at their birth was high. Yet it is a fact that the mother of Napoleon at the time of his birth was but eighteen and his father scarcely thirty. And the illustration can be repeated many times.

There is a lot of pseudo-science as well as science these days. There are required, of course, the middlemen of science who interpret to the laity the discoveries and conclusions of science. Popular thinking grows more and more affected by science, as do social conduct and individual morals. The process is not to be regretted, since the whole human progress depends upon the intelligence and not upon the emotions. And science is the fruit of the intelligence exclusively, and, therefore, ought to be relieved from the errors incident to art, letters, jurisprudence, and everything else.

But the necessity for the interpretation of science to the many admits the opportunity for charlatanry and unsound speculation. These are not a few availing themselves of the chance to impose their too insufficiently supported generalisations or their conscious or unconscious sophisms. Study the Alexandrian Era, characterised by the concentration of a cosmopolitan, catholic, tolerant, speculative Hellenic culture at Alexandria and its diffusion thence to imperial Rome, to Antioch, and to Constantinople. That culture more resembles our present one than does any other in history. And we might despair of the upshot of our thinking were the resemblance complete.

Alexandria did have science, the beginning of it. Her mathematicians elaborated geometry, her astronomers reached a cosmic conception, her physicians conducted vivisectional research. But her science could not dominate, had too much error, ignorance, superstition, politics to combat, and so perished.

Our science, however, is full grown, possesses the complete method, is on its way, cannot be stopped, represents the organised intellect of the race. Despite all opposition and all prostitution by too eager or too slothful expositors, it seems destined to enlighten mankind.—Minneapolis Journal.

LINES FROM LETTERS

Dear Mutt: I stood at the corner of Nanking and Szechuen Roads at tiffin time yesterday. You ought to have been with me. There was a huge Sikh standing there with a big stick painted white. Mrs. Jiggs was trying to buy it from him but Mr. Jiggs had tipped him not to sell. Well, old dear, as I watched I saw every kind of conveyance that this world has ever produced. I think that nearly everyone has a motor, which either belongs to him, or to his office.

The S.M.C. are regular guys when it comes to autos. They provide them for all the electricity department, and it is only the Police who have to walk. This is a very real grievance. Then those who cannot beg, borrow or steal a car use ricshaws. If the ricshaw proves too expensives the little Chinese girl who spends most of her time in a factory at about twenty cents a day, rides in a wheel barrow. This is the wierdest looking arrangement you can imagine. It requires an expert balancer to manage the contrivance.

Then there are trams. So you have the cars with their chauffeurs; the rickshaws with their coolies; the barrows with their specimens; the trams with their bell clangers; and the carriages with their mafoos. I don't believe the drivers have a nerve among them. They dash about all over the shop, and it is the biggest and fastest thing that wins out in the struggle for life.

The chauffeur plays his speed for all he is worth. He only worries about two classes of people and they are the QUICK and the DEAD. The quick are those who get out of his way, and the dead are those who don't. Lately we have been asked to keep an eye open for anyone traveling more than a hundred miles an hour. If we can catch them, or even see their number, as they fly by, then we can meet them again at the Mixed Court where assessors, rub their hands, smile, fine the scorchers ten, twenty or more dollars and sometimes send them for free board and lodging for a month or so.

John Chinaman has no idea of the "keep to the left rule." He wants to get to the other side of the road. He makes a note of the spot that he would make: then, without the slightest look to right or left, makes a dash and usually misses a dozen motors and turns round and smiles at the enraged motorists. John, if things are going bad, thinks he has a devil following him. If he can just miss a car, which is traveling at record speed, then the devil that follows him is just caught. No wonder he smiles at his good joss.

Some people walk about the roads but they don't last long. The ordinary span of their daring lives might be ten minutes but not more. Jiggs has recommended Mrs. Jiggs to keep on walking to reduce her weight. Mrs. Jiggs however has purchased an auto for the use of her lap and her count. It's a great place Mutt, old dear, and it is still hot. More later. Yours,

Jeff.

Blasco Ibanez Describes Republican Convention

BY BLASCO IBANEZ
(Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse")
(New York World)

Chicago, June 11.—The aspect of the Republican Convention has changed completely. The first three sessions, those lifeless, monotonous sessions with their improvised oratory and pantomime used to amuse the public and keep it in cheer during the long wait for the platform, are now a faded memory.

The heat has had a great deal to do with this change. Yesterday the convention shed its coat. It was a good move. It is so hot that I have been forced to put on a light Palm Beach suit especially made for wear in sizzling Vera Cruz. The city is sweltering under an oppressive, stifling temperature. You can see the flags wave over the top of the buildings. But it is a wayward breeze intended only to cool the roofs of this metropolis. In the streets you feel as if you were locked up in an oven.

The delegates, who in the first few days kept their coats on to exhibit their badges and insignia, have renounced this vanity. As soon as they get on the floor of the convention off come their jackets. The public in the galleries are not slow to follow their example. The dominating tone of the vast assemblage is now white, which offers a striking and pleasing contrast with the color of the hundreds of national flags adorning the girders and ceiling of the room.

NEWSPAPERMEN IN ACTION

The newspaper men not only remove their coats, but they also roll up their sleeves as if they were getting ready for a boxing bout. I can see their arms flashing back and forth as through to record their sensations and emotions on writing pads.

Senator Lodge is the only member of the convention who preserves the conventional dress of parliamentary bodies. He continues to appear in his frock coat. He does not seem to mind the heat. Cold and imperturbable, the hottest waves break against him in vain. Their fury does not intimidate him.

It is now that I find the closest resemblance between this gathering of men come together for a political purpose and the throngs, which in my native land attend bull fights. On hot afternoons the male spectators around the arena shed their coats. The women attend the national sport in light colored dresses. Over the vast amphitheater thousands of fans flutter in the air. There are fans also in this convention to complete the parallel between the Spanish sport and the political gathering assembled in the Coliseum. But here, of course, fans are free. They are distributed by the candidates or by friends who have something to advertise.

EVERY DELEGATE SHOUTS

The delegates no longer applaud as a matter of courtesy or out of regard for political discipline, as they applauded a few days ago when some of the grand old men of the party addressed them while the proceedings were marking time.

The nominations have begun and every delegate shouts, applauds, hoots or protests with unmistakable sincerity. Nothing perfunctory about it. The delegates have now a personal interest in what is going on and they spontaneously express their feelings. The time has come to pick the nominee. Every man on the floor of the convention has done his own picking already, believes in the wisdom of his selection and will do everything he can to bring about the triumph of his hero.

The convention has reached its most interesting stage. I witnessed a rare spectacle this morning. The delegates broke loose. They paid no heed to the presidential gavel. Carried away by the enthusiasm of their faith, they stood up and voiced their pent-up feelings with a vim and fed upon itself until it became a veritable frenzy.

It was worth while to have come to Chicago to see this scene. From the earliest sessions, I was repeatedly asked if the convention reminded me of the bull-ring. I said that it did. But I had my doubts. The public was too orderly. Its demonstrations were too disciplined. The public of the bull-ring is more spontaneous in its outbursts. And it makes more noise.

But I am beginning to realise that American publics deceive the casual observer. When you think that they have reached the limit, that you have nothing more to expect, you suddenly find that they have only begun to show their mettle. They take longer to get up steam. There is a sort of reasoned enthusiasm. But when they do let go they explode with terrible force as no other public I know of.

TAKE LONG TO GET UP STEAM

I must qualify the comparison I have already made between the public of this convention and the one that attends the bull ring. The spectators at a bull fight are mere spectators. They don't go down to the arena to mingle with the fighters. In the convention, however, the delegates play a dual role. They are both audience and performer. In the ring, while the spectators are shouting, the toreadores carry on so that—as it frequently happens—there is every possibility that a new episode may dampen the enthusiasm of the throngs or entirely alter their reaction. In the convention the delegates shout even more than the people in the galleries. The spectacle stops while the actors exhaust their emotions. No one heeds the presiding officer.

I declare that I have never witnessed in any bull ring anything like the explosion of enthusiasm with which Wood's nomination was received today. In volume and duration it surpassed any clamor that I have ever heard.

A bit of stage business aided this extraordinary exhibiton. The arklike interior of the Coliseum has a long, narrow bridge above the girders connecting a series of circular platforms closely resembling the fighting-top of a war vessel. Several Wood supporters had stationed themselves in these fighting-tops, and as soon as Governor Allen finished his nominating speech, released a deluge of feathers—the emblematic feathers which bear Wood's name. As the red, blue and green quills descended upon public and delegates floods of light were turned on the winged messengers, with remarkable effect.

A part of the public was electrified by the feather shower.

"Wood!" they roared. "We want Wood."

The Wood delegates jumped, to their feet and began to shout, waving banners and the national colors. The spectators got up and joined in the demonstration. At this point the noise was deafening the galleries were a mass of waving banners and feathers. Some of the spectators sang; others tooted horns and a few joined in with catcalls.

BAND REMAINS SILENT

Meanwhile the official band remained silent in its nest among the girders. There was no need of it to increase the din. A few delegates and visitors had come provided with tin trumpets, on which they proceeded to discourse appropriate melodies.

The Wood delegates were not satisfied to remain in their seats. They thought perhaps that the clamor needed movement, so they got up and began a single-file parade on the floor of the convention. The California delegation kept their seats and watched the parade with mixed feelings.

As the Wood men filed past the press stands my eye caught sight of a short, burely, bald-pated gentleman of the South, densely sunburned. He carried a tin trumpet and was blowing it with childish fervor.

A flock of cheer leaders turned up in the galleries and began to direct the vocal efforts of Wood's sympathisers.

"We want Wood!" these leaders shouted.

"Wood—Wood," replied the public.

The din had lasted a quarter of an hour. Lodge had retired. Familiar with these demonstrations, he had decided to wait until the clamor should subside with the exhaustion of the enthusiasts.

NOISE INCREASES

But time passed and the public did not seem to grow tired. Lodge came forward to the rostrum and tapped the table twice. The shouting immediately gained volume. Another tap and the same result. The last grandee of the Republican party—as someone has called him—was disobeyed and cried down by the delirious assembly. The Wood supporters, convinced at last that all human things must come to an end, slowly returned to their seats and shouting began to die down as the echoes of a band disappearing in the distance.

This frensied outburst of enthusiasm that lasted more than half an hour, was watched in gloomy silence by certain delegations. I know nothing more tragic and affecting than the spectacle of a man from the sunglided lands, who has to control his feelings, turn his personality inside out, as it were, chain the spirited temper which is his birthright and appear indifferent and disdainful. The California delegates kept still while the Wood demonstration was going on. They had ears but they did not hear; they had eyes, but did not see Their thoughts wandered far away. Alas, the indifference of passionate, exhuberant men! Their eyes did not see, but they spoke with mute eloquence, despite the curb of a strong will. They seemed to say to the noisy acclaimers of General Wood:

"Wait a while, dear friends. Just wait until our Hiram's name is put in nomination. We are going to give you a sample of what the Far West can produce in the line of racket-making."

The Wood and Johnson candidacies are the two volcanoes of this convention. The other candidacies have their followers, but I don't anticipate that the speeches made to present any of the other aspirants will arouse any enthusiasm comparable to the outbursts which these two men have stirred or will provoke.

Human nature is the same the world over. In politics, in literature, in everything, our tastes vary with a motion like the swing of the pendulum. When we have reached a certain point we wish to move to the opposite extreme.

Apparently the American people are tired of being governed by professors.

After Wilson, the idealist, the man of world conceptions and generous impulses, the Nation seems to be swinging toward an ironhanded, practical leader.

We always want what we do not have. That is the reason why the American people have set their heart on finding an energetic man. Who will win? Wood? Johnson? Some other candidate presented at the last moment as a compromise?

Whoever he may be, I hope he will serve his country well. I hope also that the quality of his service will be such that it will surpass, if this is possible, the glorious records of his predecessors who advanced the cause of human liberty and civilisation when they served their country well.

New Treatment For Leprosy

The United States Public Health Service has reports of what appears to be a cure for leprosy, it is announced by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming.

Thus one of the world's most dreaded maladies, regarded as a hopeless and incurable scourge of humanity since early history, would seem to have been conquered by officers of the Public Health Service in the leper colony in the Hawaiian Islands.

For some years the belief has been gaining ground that leprosy could be cured, and encouraging progress was made by several investigators. The starting point for this study was the observation that now and then the course of the disease appeared to be favorably influenced by treatment with chaulmoogra oil. The treatment, however, was attended with many difficulties and could not be carried out in all cases. At this point the Public Health Service enlisted the co-operation of Prof. L. E. Dean, head of the chemical department of the College of Hawaii, and president of that institution, suggesting that attempts be made either to isolate the active constituent of his drug, or to devise means for making its continued administration feasible.

The latter has been accomplished by preparing what is known as an "ethyl ester" from the Chaulmoogra oil. The treatment has been carried on at the Leprosy Investigation Station at Kalihi, Hawaii, the work being directed by Dr. J. T. McDonald, director of the station. The results of the treatment thus far have been so satisfactory that lepers come willingly for treatment, a recent inspection by Hawaiian health authorities failing to disclose a single secreted case of leprosy. Following a course of treatment, extending over about a year, 48 lepers, treated according to the new method, were paroled in October, 1919. Up to now they have remained free from disease. At the present time the treatment has been administered only at the receiving station, but it is hoped to provide facilities for the treating also of lepers in the leper colony at Molokai.

Surgeon General Cummirg's announcement relates to lepers who have been treated by the new method and have been under observation for a considerable period. Moreover, the decision as to apparent cure has, in the case of each patient, been officially determined, not by officers of the Public Health Service, but by a special parole board, which alone has authority to discharge a patient from custody.

The Public Health Service is now conducting a very careful study of the treatment, making detailed records of all the cases and taking photographs of the lesions once a month. Details concerning the treatment will be published in the near future.

The Great Adventure

BY S. E. KISER

If those past moments could come back—
Do you remember still
The through train coming up the track,
The wonder and the thrill?
The taunting whistle and the roar,
The wind that swept along—
The turning back to town once more,
With laughter and with song.

What was her name—the girl that you
Believed so lovely then?
Amelia, wasn't it—or Sue
Or Josephine or Gwen?
An, well, no matter anyhow;
Her hair, no doubt, is gray,
And she may not remember now
How far that was away.

Then came the day of proud goodbyes
When you looked fondly back,
And She beheld through misty eyes
The train shrink on the track.
The laughter wasn't quite so loud
Upon the way up town
As when you mingled with the crowd,
The daylight dwindling down.

How small and poor the town appears,
How dead and dusty, too,
As, looking back along the years
We catch the distant view,
But what adventure can remain
To match that proud emprise
When, on the fast-departing train,
We watched with misty eyes?

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Why Women Should Not Do The Proposing

BY GEORGIA ELLIOTT

A custom may in the beginning have had no good reason for its existence, but like the cow-path which later develops into a lane and a main street and a public highway it furnishes a much safer and smoother route to one's destination than if you start out to pick your own way through brambles and briers.

The best reason why a woman should not propose is that she would defeat her own ends. Suppose a woman should resolve to fly in the face of custom and prejudice and make a desperate effort to work out her own scheme of happiness; suppose she should summon up enough courage to break through the barriers with which what is "womanly, refined and becoming" has hedged her in, what would she find on the other side of the barrier?

Man—cool, stolid, unromantic, unexcitable man, all tied up in the grave clothes of "what will other people think?" And he would say: "Well, what are you doing here all alone? Isn't this a little—er—a little unusual? Where are the rest of the women?" And against a human glacier like this she would have to launch her red-hot proposal of love! For man never will treat with woman as an individual. He regards her entirely en masse. If she acts like other women she does well. If not, well, she is "different," and that is never an advantage in a man's eyes.

If it is difficult now for women to defend themselves against the charge that they look upon a husband as a "meal ticket" rather than as a companion, wouldn't their difficulties thicken if they set out on a deliberate campaign of proposing themselves?

Then, too, the proposal is the least important move in the love game. The maneuvering that precedes the proposal is as much more important than the proposal itself as the gathering force that precedes a thunderstorm are more important than the one brief flash of lightning that clears the atmosphere. And that maneuvering is left largely in the woman's hands.

Woman may seem to be no more important than a member of the audience when man walks out on the stage and does his little proposing sketch, but she can always have the secret satisfaction of knowing that she is the author, the creator, the manager and director of that sketch.

When a man asks a woman to marry him he is placing himself in the position of a suppliant, and is exalting her to the place of one who has a royal favor to bestow. It is one of the bulwarks of chivalry which we propose to tear down when we suggest allowing a woman to propose. And chivalry has a very definite value for a woman.

There are those who pretend to find in chivalry an insult to woman's intelligence, but it seems more like the natural instinct of every human being to find some one above him whom he can look up to and reverence. As long as these knights spread out their cloaks for the woman to walk over it seems as if women should be the last ones to kick them aside.

Women are too emotional to propose. They are too apt to slip their idealised man onto the first man they meet and imagine it fits him perfectly. A woman may be all right to handle the oars when the boat is in mid-stream with nothing more important to do than to drift along and no need to keep out of the way of other boats, but a proposal is a suggestion to land the boat, preparatory to getting onto solid earth again, and for this purpose it seems as if a man's steady hand is much better than a woman's.

Men are natural born hunters. They love the excitement of the chase. Suspense and uncertainty are two of the strongest baits which a woman can use in courtship, and, of course, she has to surrender the advantage of both of these when she takes the proposal in her own hands. I have heard hunters say they could chase a rabbit all day long, but if he sat down tamely and looked them in the face they had no desire even to cock the gun.

Diplomacy is woman's natural sphere of activity. As long as she keeps to that the odds are all on her side. As soon as she organises her sex into a Battalion of Death and goes out to fight with a man's proper weapons she is beaten. For her to abandon diplomacy and that subtle but all-powerful wooing of men for the more direct masculine method of coming to the point I think she would lose much more than she would gain.

Nut Butter Is Wholesome

Cocoa butter, as nut butter is called in England was not accepted with enthusiasm by the British public when natural butter became scarce during the war, so the Food Committee of the Royal Society made some elaborate tests of its effects on human beings. The New York Medical Journal summarises the results, which show that slightly less of the fat of cocoa butter than of that of real butter is utilised by the body; it causes no digestive troubles; when consumed in large quantities it has a slightly laxative effect, and in general it is a safe and wholesome food.

Lightning And Its Freaks

Garrett P. Serviss Shows Cause Of Electricity's Pranks In Air

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Please explain what causes electricity to explode in the air, and why it does not tear up the ground when it reaches the earth. W. B."

In speaking of the explosion of electricity in the air I suppose that you refer to such phenomena as the electric spark and lightning. These are not explosions in the ordinary sense of that word, although they often produce explosions and explosive effects.

A strong flash of lightning causes a sudden expansion of the air immediately around it, and the displaced air instantaneously rushes back again to fill the momentary vacuum, thus giving rise to waves of sound which constitute the phenomena of thunder.

The atmospheric effect is very like that produced by the sudden expansion of the air around the muzzle of a cannon as the expanding gases rush out of the bore. The roar of a cannon is analogous to the thunder of a lightning discharge. But there is a difference in the manner in which the air is expanded by lightning and by an explosion of gases.

INTENSE HEAT EXPANDS AIR

The former, being a current of electricity, or of electrons, resisted in its passage by a non-conducting, or only partially conducting, medium (the atmosphere), forces its way through the molecules of the air and produces an intense heat, which instantaneously expands the air. There may also be other expansive action due to repulsion between the electrified air particles. In the case of an explosion of gunpowder the air is driven bodily aside to make room for the expanding gasses.

When a lightning bolt strikes the ground its effects are usually manifested only by the formation of a hole in the earth, the existence of which may entirely escape attention, unless the ground is very moist, when there may be an explosion of suddenly-formed steam, making a little excavation.

Ordinarily the only visible effect of lightning upon the soil consists of a tube called a "fulgurite," which may penetrate many inches or many feet into the ground. These tubes are lined with vitrified mineral substance, due, of course, to the great heat which has sufficed instantly to melt the sand and other substances constituting the soil. Moist earth being a good conductor of electricity, the discharge is rapidly conducted away on all sides, and usually without explosive effects.

But the result is often very different if the lightning strikes an object resting on the surface of the earth, such as a house, a tree, or even an isolated rock. Explosive effects are then very common, if there is any moisture present which can be expanded into steam by the sudden accession of heat.

The trunks of trees are occasionally split from end to end by the instantaneous formation of steam inside them, or, more frequently, their bark is blown off, or huge limbs are torn off and flung far away. There is at least one record (in Poggendorff's "Annalen") of the complete annihilation of a tree by a lightning stroke.

Secret Of The Moon

(A Child's Fancy)

BY ANGELA MORGAN

Where does the sky foam disappear?
What becomes of the beecy white
When day is done and the lamps are near
And clouds have vanished across the night?
Oh, didn't you know that a radiant throng
Of, heavenly children are hard at play,
Blowing bubbles the whole night long
Out of the sky foam of the day?
Blowing bubbles adown the dark
From slender, wispy, ethereal steams—
Bubbles that shatter in spray and spark
Till all the sky is ablaze with gems?
But look! There is one that endures the test,
Rounding unbroken upon the sight,
Balancing sheer on the hill's high crest,
A shimmering, beautiful bubble of light.
O wonderful moon! from your place on high,
Won't you tell of the children who romp and play,
Blowing bubbles the whole night long
Out of the sky foam of the day?
How does it happen that you alone
Shine so steady and soft and fair
But all the others are gaily blown
To scatter like diamonds in the air?

Says Root's Mission Shows World Unity

Bourgeois Finds Hope That Differences Of Europe And America Will Not Be Lasting

The Hague, June 16 (Associated Press).—The conference of jurists invited by the League of Nations to meet in this Capital for the organisation of permanent International Court of Justice, opened its session here today.

The conference was inaugurated by Leon Bourgeois, President of the French Association of the Society of Nations, who, in speaking on behalf of the Council of the League of Nations, referred to the presence of Elihu Root, former Secretary of State of the United States, who is one of the delegates to participate in the construction of the court.

Mr. Root's attendance as a representative of America, said M. Bourgeois, "is a proof that the Old World and the new, notwithstanding passing difficulties, will not be separated by a lasting barrier." The "terrible lesson of the war" continued the French statesman, was necessary to make the peoples of the world understand that the basis of peace between nations did not lie in force. He declared the proposed court would be a really permanent body, not merely a court of arbitration, and that it would render decisions from which there would be no appeal. It would be necessary, he added, to have a strong organisation to carry out the decisions which would be made in future by the body to be organised.

Lasso Being New To Lass She Seeks Information

Monroe Salisbury, star of many Universal Western stories, was the center of an admiring group of visitors from the East. They asked all sorts of questions about motion pictures and life in the West, and finally one gushing debutante asked:

"And what is that coil or rope for that's hanging on your saddle?"

"Why, that's to catch horses and cattle with," replied Salisbury politely.

"How interesting," murmured the sweet young thing. "And what do you use for bait?"

Hog Loses Weight In Long Swim

Hickman, Ky., June 12.—After a twenty-six mile swim down the Mississippi River the 250-pound hog belonging to L. Jones, near Island No. 2, returned home a 240-pound hog with a record as a swimmer. The hog was caught in midstream by two Hickman men while fishing. Mr. Jones arrived the next day to get the hog, which he said had been on a mound above Columbus, Ky. He thinks the hog fell into the river and was carried downstream by the current. The hog lost ten pounds in weight as the result of its journey.
